Q: Android - Track network activity i want to track which app has active network connection. Is it possible? A: I don't think there is any way to accurately track which app is in use of the network. Not unless the user explicitly gives it some sort of extra information, like finger prints or some kind of unique identifier. The easiest way to see what apps are being used would be to have a record of network activity for a certain period of time.

Q: Please help me find out the error in the below code I have written the code to extract phone numbers from the string, but It is not extracting any numbers. Can anyone tell me the error?

public static void main(String args[]) throws Exception{ String string = "9876543210"; String phone = ""; String result = ""; Pattern p = Pattern.compile("[0-9]*"); Matcher m = p.matcher(string); while (m.find()) { m.appendReplacement(result, ""); } m.appendTail(result); System.out.println(result); p = Pattern.compile("[0-9]+"); m = p.matcher(
